this new book by Dr. Randall W.A. Davidson...

PRACTICAL HEALTH AND SAFETY GUIDELINES FOR SCHOOL THEATER OPERATIONS

Assessing the Risks in Middle, Junior and Senior High School
Theater Buildings and Programs

...presents a series of day-to-day risk management guidelines and is a must-read for parents, administrators, boards of directors, and personnel who oversee school performing arts programs. It is hands-on reference book, pointing out the hazards and risks to those individuals who, by law, are elected, hired, or appointed to operate school districts and their performing arts programs, in a healthy and safe environment.

This book identifies areas that most performing arts personnel and administrators might not think of as dangerous or hazardous, such as aging or outdated equipment or facilities. This book's material may be startling to some, but the author's hope is that it will be a major wakeup call to all those who work in and administer school performing arts activities.

The purpose of the book is to motivate major re-thinking and necessary changes regarding health and safety practices in the performing arts at all educational levels. This volume provides readers with over 400 pages of pertinent health and safety information, pointing out hazardous conditions and recommended practices, and...

...is a call to action

to protect and save students and instructors in the performing arts, worldwide.
